Kinowear.com: Forum Moderator 2008-2009

Kinowear is a men's style consulting company with an online blog and forum. As well as moderating duties I provide consultation to help men develop their own personal style and gain confidence by picking out pieces that help create a character, a representation of their identity. It constantly gives me better ideas on how to develop characters, costumes and detailed visual ideas.

Fedex Office: Center Production Coordinator 2007-2009

I was the Production Operator in charge of every aspect of customer orders. I consulted with clients on complex orders and created solutions with our available services. I oversaw production of multiple orders, and other centers for outsourced projects as well as operating the printing and finishing equipment. I also ensured that files were print ready and created designs and layouts while directing my team of up to five people to meet necessary deadlines. Customers came to trust and value my expertise to accomplish their needs.

Marketsource: Chicago Area Sales Representative 2005-2007

Marketsource is a retail marketing company that represents brands all across retail outlets around America. I was stationed in several stores where it was my responsibility to build the brand relationship with Hewlett-Packard and its retail partners. My duties involved technical product demonstration and training, and promotions events as well as interacting with customers and sales.
